

This article was originally published here

MCKESSON

McKesson announced that it is relocating its corporate headquarters from San Francisco to Las Colinas, Texas. The move will be effective on April 1, 2019.

“We are excited to strengthen our presence in Texas and make Las Colinas our official global headquarters,” John H. Hammergren, chairman and CEO of McKesson, said in a press release. “Governor Abbott and the Irving/Las Colinas community have provided tremendous support since we opened our Las Colinas campus last April. Making this move will improve efficiency, collaboration and cost-competitiveness, while providing an exceptional work environment for our employees.”

Get the full story on our sister site, Medical Design & Outsourcing.

The post McKesson to move HQ from California to Texas appeared first on MassDevice.